Simon Mignolet of Liverpool at Melwood

Fresh from raising over €100k for charity, Simon Mignolet has launched his own auction with the help of some of his Liverpool teammates.

The Reds shot-stopper was back in his hometown of Sint-Truiden last weekend and was at Stayen stadium to take charge of coaching local children from the area in connection with an Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis charity.

Mignolet is an ambassador for the ALS Liga charity, and was at the stadium on Saturday to face penalties from the youngsters, as well as hand out tips on how they can improve.

A charity auction was then held on Saturday evening after the training session, where it was confirmed the total sum raised was €102,435 (£90,000).

The Reds shot-stopper hasn't stopped there however, and he has set up an online auction to bid for signed shirts from himself as well as the likes of Adam Lallana, Nathaniel Clyne, Lucas, Sadio Mane and Roberto Firmino.

A signed Clyne shirt starts at £106, with Lallana's beginning slightly higher at £130 at the Catawiki auction.

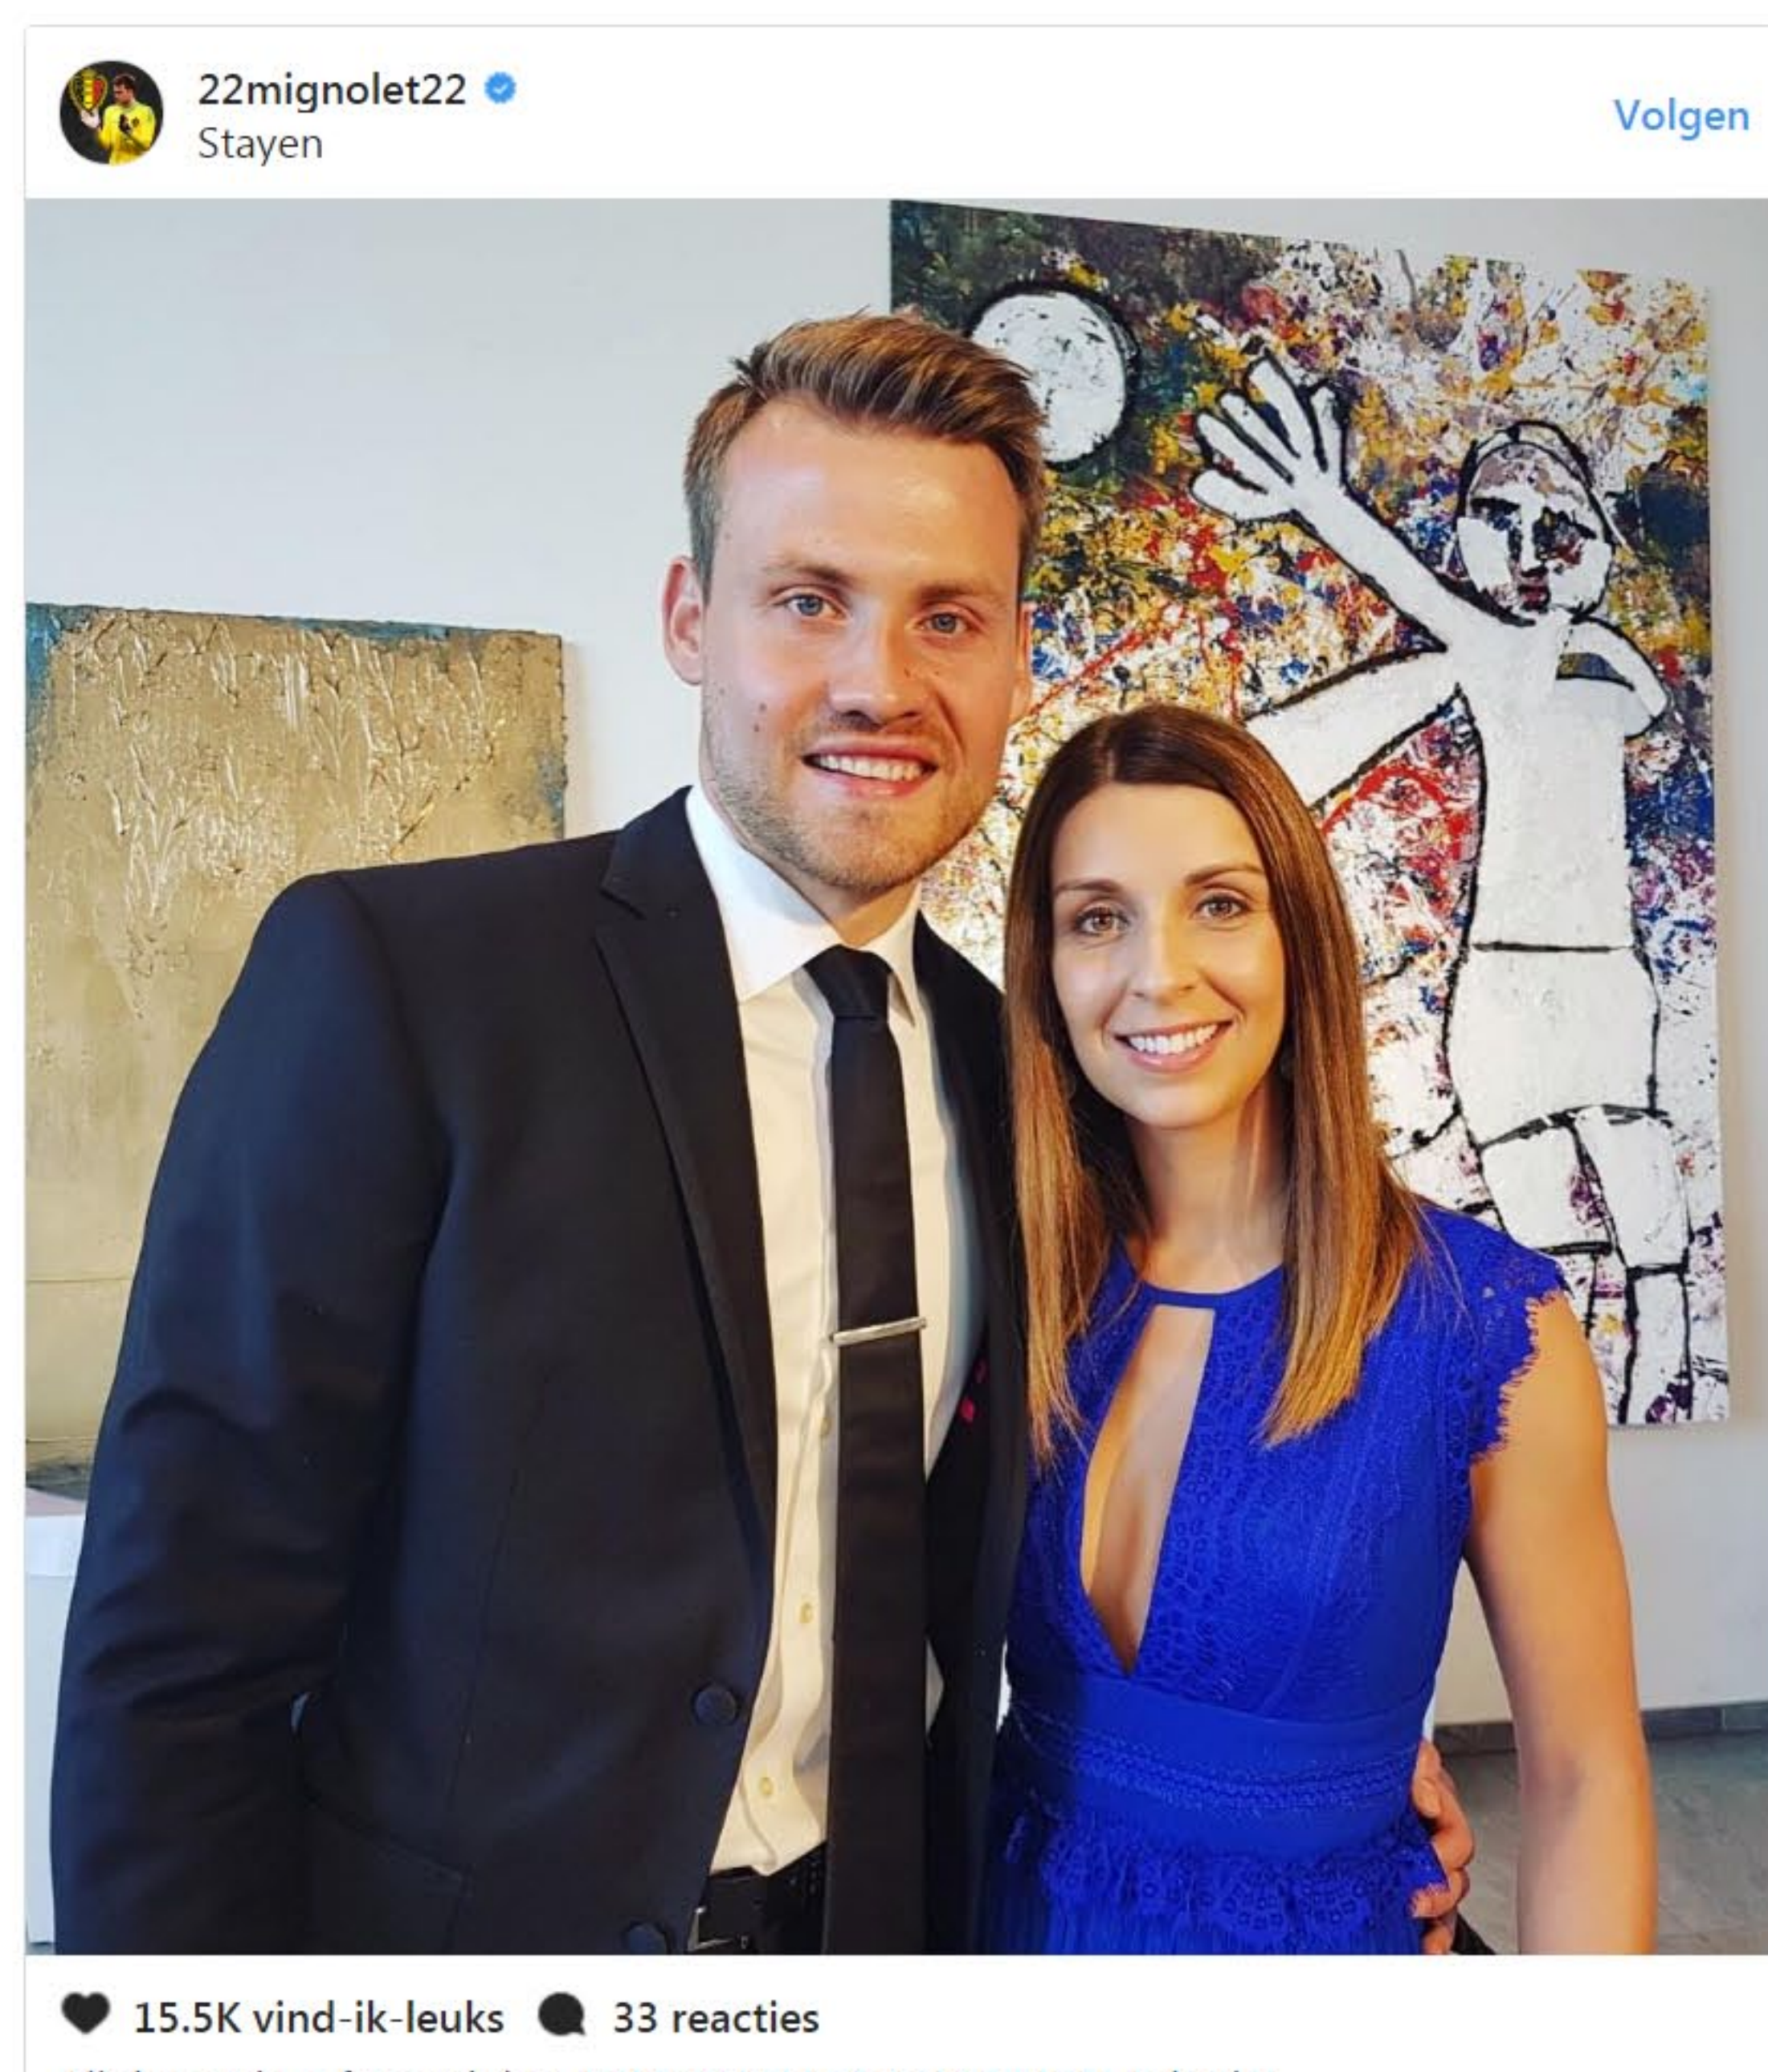

Brazil international Firmino also signed a pair of his Adidas boots, with the starting price set at £130 and a signed Lucas Leiva shirt sees the bidding open at £86.

Sadio Mane's boots are also in the auction, with the Senegal forward's Nike's going for £95.

Everton striker Romelu Lukaku has also donated one of his shirts, which starts at £147.

Mignolet's Belgian international teammates Eden Hazard and Kevin de Bruyne have also helped out.

"What a day yesterday! We raised over €100k!" Mignolet posted on Instagram.

"You can still help by bidding online on these memorabilia: www.catawiki.com/simon-mignolet #support #alsliga #MND #ALSSimon #YNWA".

The ALS charity, which shot to prominence in 2014 for its ice-bucket challenge association, is one which is close to Mignolet's heart.

The Belgian's uncle has been a sufferer of the neurological disease for 10 years.

Anyone wishing to bid for any of the items on display can do so by heading to the Catawiki auction here.
